We are pleased to present our second pilot watch with a historically inspired design in the legendary 155 series in collaboration with the specialist watch magazine REVOLUTION. Shortly after we released just 150 pieces of our special edition 155 Revolution in 2019, we had the spark of an idea for a follow-up watch. And we knew we wanted to extend this partnership back then too. The result is the 155 S Revolution II (Sinn 155 S Bright Star TEGIMENT®) special edition limited to 300 pieces. It has a historically inspired design and signature SINN technology. Think of it as a new version of a classic. This chronograph follows the historical dimensions, but its design has been updated for the here and now – and beyond – with its exceptional scratch resistance and fully black design.

The 155 S Revolution II has the original measurements spot on, with its case diameter coming in at 43 mm. It also has the same bidirectional rotating pilot's bezel with a minute scale, classic bicompax display with small advancing seconds and 30-minute counter, and large stopwatch second hand display from the dial centre. But the SINN TEGIMENT Technology and Black Hard Coating are brand-new additions to the case and pilot's bezel for this model. While the crystal was made from acrylic previously, it is now made from sapphire crystal (a novelty in the history of the 155 model). We also made the decision with our partner REVOLUTION to replicate the historical hands on the 'Bundeswehr Chronograph for Pilots' from the 1960s. This gives the watch a strong historical connection, highlighting the commitment to tradition down to the finest detail of this pilot chronograph.

As a symbol of the collaboration with the specialist watch magazine REVOLUTION, the matte black dial is adorned with a discreet black luminous 'Revolution star'.
